FDA requires bottled water to be tested regularly for the same contaminants as public tap water supplies.

What has been called a disorder of low sexual desire actually have no abnormal physiological problem.